

Maritime Trip Day 39 September 30, 2010 57 degrees F, Raining all day and all night

After breakfast in the campers, we headed into Lake Placid to do a little shopping, ice cream eating at Ben and Jerry's, and grocery shopping at the Price Chopper. Lake Placid is the home of the 1932 and 1980 Winter Olympics. The Olympic Village is still in tack and being added onto perhaps for future trials. The rain just kept coming down as we headed back to the campground for a late lunch and for catching up on emails, etc. The mountains make the cell phones useless but the internet works most of the time.

The evening passed quietly except for the time Wayne was worried about the rain, the nearby Ausable River and flooding because the rain was falling and the weathermen were predicting trouble! It didn't happen, so dominoes and tea were the event of the evening. Worrier Wayne was the Winner tonight.
